An Open Letter To The Voters Of Bulloch County

Subject to the rules of the Democratic Primary to be held on Wednesday, November 18, 1959, I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Roads and Revenues of Bulloch County.

Though it will be impossible for me to see every voter before election, I want the general public to know through this medium that if I am elected I will diligently and earnestly discharge the duties of this office and always to the very best of my ability.

For more than twenty years I have served in various executive capacities in the Armed Services. This experience, coupled with my years of service both as an employee and as the owner of a wholesale grocery and notions business, I feel, helps qualify me in being able to discharge the duties demanded of this office. I have worked over the years with the various church, civic and service organizations of the community and have been an active supporter of the Chamber of Commerce and its program.

If honored with this office, I pledge myself to conduct its affairs in a fair and impartial manner to all of our citizens and to apply my best efforts toward getting the most for our county that is available through state and federal agencies.

I will appreciate your support and your vote. If I am elected I will be humble and grateful and will constantly strive to merit the confidence placed in me.

Respectfully,
HENRY J. ELLIS

FALCON, the New-size Ford, is America's lowest-priced 6-passenger car.

The Falcon is priced up to $72 less than its rear-engine competitor... as much as $124 less than other American-built, so-called compact 6-passenger cars. And the new Ford Falcon is the easiest car in the world to own. Just look at these Falcon superlatives:

Heavy and economy! The Falcon has the clean lines and the sleek, aerodynamic shape of the glamorous 60 Ford. Diamond Lustre Finish rear needs waxing. Galvanized structural members resist rust and corrosion. Bulb-on front fenders cost less, replace easily.

Six passengers with all their luggage. The Falcon easily seats six big adults in built-in comfort. There's no other car in the world that shifts to interfere with center-front passenger. Big luggage compartment in the rear holds over 25 cu. ft.

Land which he is managing for pines and creek hardwoods. He is a general farmer producing peanuts, tobacco, corn, soybeans, cows and hogs. His cattle enterprise is one of his biggest, utilizing not only his pastures, but also corn for dry lot feeding of yearlings and steers.

Mr. Neal is the son of the late E. L. Neal and Mrs. Laura Shubert. Mr. Neal of Sifton, He is 36 and married to the former Miss Betty Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehman Atkins of the Sifton Company. They were married in 1949 and have one daughter, Janet, and one son, Randy S. He graduated from Sifton High School in 1949 and spent three years in military service during the war serving in the Air Force as a gunner on medium bombers, before beginning his farming career. After the war he farmed with his father one year before buying his own farm in 1946 of 175 acres. In 1949 he bought another adjoining farm of 205 acres.

Mr. Neal describes these farms as badly run down, with much of the land laying idle, houses in bad repair with no barns or other outbuildings, and fences almost nonexistent when he bought them. Since then he has put up new fences, new barns and grain bins, and rebuilt the old homesite.

Mr. Neal gives much credit for his success not only to his wife, but to the Soil Conservation Service and the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, but also to the Federal Land Bank which helped him get started; the Farmers Home Administration which helped him develop the farm and build a home; the Statesboro Production Credit Association; the Vocational Agriculture and Extension Service; Forestry agencies and local banks.

yields prior to the beginning of his Soil Conservation program, Mr. Neal thinks his policy of good fertilization without burning any residues together with good crop rotations has meant the difference. "Always turning something back to soil," Mr. Neal said, "is the best way I know of building up your land."

J-C's Seeking Nominees For Award
Any person in the community knowing an area outstanding young farmer are today asked by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce to nominate him for possible awards and recognition as a Young Farmer project get underway.

According to Al Courney, project chairman, nominees are now available at the Bulloch County Agent's office.

The "Farmer" search is aimed at honoring the community's agriculturalists who have made exceptional career progress without neglecting good conservation practices or responsible roles in community life. Jaycees also hope that a better understanding of the farmer and his problems will result and that more young people will become interested in farming as a life time career.

All farmers aged 21-35 not becoming 36 during 1959, are eligible for nomination. Nominees may be land owners or renters. The local search is part of a nationwide effort now taking place in some 1,500 American communities, sponsored nationally by the American Petroleum Institute, Committee on Agriculture and the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

After community judging, Jaycees will enter the national contest. Dr. Morris is a native of North Carolina, a graduate of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and has held pastorates in Kentucky, North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina, before coming to Bulloch Street Church in 1955. He has served on various committees in the Virginia and South Carolina Conventions for two years.

He has since served as pastor of Claxton First Baptist Church and Ardley Park Church in Savannah. At present he is pastor of the First Baptist Church, Forsyth, Georgia.

All members and friends of First Baptist Church are cordially invited to attend these revival services November 15-22.

IN APPRECIATION
We wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to all the people in Bulloch County that helped us to raise funds and assisted in making our convention a success. We would especially like to thank the local radio station, WWSN, Mayor Bill Bowen and the city and county police. We think our "Yankee" guests especially enjoyed the "southern hospitality" of Mayor Bowen and the police department.

Our local newspapers, the Bulloch Herald and the Bulloch Times assisted us in many ways. The local merchants responded generously with many valuable and beautiful gifts for door prizes. Thank you.

BULLOCH TIMES

Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Alden Howard, Don, Vernon, Pat and DeLores and Neal Howard, all of Brooklet.

By watching the dairy cow's production performance and other factors, many Georgia dairymen are learning to feed their cows economically. They allow the cows to consume large amounts of high-quality forage and then feed additional grain depending on the quality and quantity of forage—pasture, hay or silage—that are fed, (2) the weight, condition and appetite of the animal, and (3) the local milk marketing conditions.

Feeding all milking animals in the herd the same amount of grain usually tends to overfeed the high producers and underfeed the low producers. An efficient way to feed is to give each milking cow grain according to her milk production and butterfat test. Under most Georgia conditions, a 12 to 16 per cent ration fed at the rate of one pound of grain to two and one-half to four pounds of milk should be ample.

During periods when surplus milk is being produced, it may be practical for dairymen to reduce the amount of grain fed, particularly during the latter stage of the cow's lactation. Grain feed recommendations and tables on amounts of feed to use are included in Georgia Agricultural Extension Bulletin 604, "Georgia

Need For Grain Feed Dairy Cows

(By T. R. Powell, County Agent)

By watching the dairy cow's production performance and other factors, many Georgia dairymen are learning to feed their cows economically. ## Dairy Herd Management Practices which can be obtained at your county agent's office.

COASTAL BERNUDA
Acreage planted in Coastal Bermuda has increased greatly in recent years. Perhaps you have some pasture land growing this grass. Here are some new facts you may want to know about Coastal Bermuda.

1. Research during the past three years at the Southern Piedmont Experiment Station, Athens, Georgia, has shown that Coastal Bermuda was most severe on plots that had received combinations of high nitrogen and low potassium fertilization.

2. As the amount of nitrogen increased, winter kill caused progressively more damage—particularly on plots that received no potash fertilization.

3. Excessive nitrogen without adequate potash, over stimulates the grass, making it more susceptible to winter injury. Potash is effective in hardening the plant material. This makes the grass more hardy.

4. Farmers should take soil samples to determine the potash level in coastal fields. Low potash conditions can then be remedied with high potash fertilizers such as 5-10-15 or 0-10-20.

FALL VEGETABLE SUPPLY
Production of fall vegetables in the nation is expected to total about twelve per cent less than a year ago, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Indications point to considerably smaller supplies of cabbage, carrots, lettuce, a slightly smaller supply of tomatoes, cauliflower, snap beans and sweet corn. A larger production of cucumbers, green peas and egg plants are expected.

The supply of potatoes this fall and winter will be considerably below last year's heavy offerings, the USDA says. The latest estimates place this fall's crop about nine per cent below last year even though that will be a little above average.

The sweet potato crop is now estimated at about three per cent above last year but in the eight per cent below average.

To be a successful merchant, you must know what the buyers want and then let them know that you have it.

Plastic Bag Safety Rules

NEW YORK—At a recent meeting held here to warn the public about the potential dangers from mis-use of disposable ultra-thin plastic bags, the baby's crib was pointed to as the greatest source of danger resulting from suffocation by plastic bags.

Dr. James L. Goddard, left, head of the Accident Prevention Bureau, U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, said his department's findings showed the mis-use of ultra-thin disposable plastic bags as makeshift covers in cribs, play pens, etc., was the principal cause of suffocation attributed to plastic.

He reported that when an infant lies on its stomach, as prescribed by pediatricians, its face may come in contact with the non-porous material as a result of moving around in the crib.

Mrs. Franklin Honored By Boston Univ.

Mrs. Lucy Franklin, of Brookline, Mass., a frequent visitor to Statesboro, has been honored by Boston University where she was dean of women from 1945 until her retirement in 1948.

Mrs. Franklin is the wife of Dr. George Bruce Franklin, retired professor of English, who grew up in the Statesboro community. He is the brother of Dr. Paul G. Franklin, of this city, and of Mrs. E. A. Brannen, of near Statesboro.

On November 8, Mrs. Franklin was the key figure at the dedication of Boston University's new $2,500,000 women's dormitory, The Towers. A portrait of her, painted by Richmond Knapp Fletcher, was unveiled in a ceremony attended by several hundred students and alumni. The portrait hangs in the Lucy Jenkins Franklin Lounge, furnished in her honor by the University Women's Council.

University President Harold C. Chase presided. Mrs. David D. Nickerson, of the Women's Council, spoke of Mrs. Franklin's "stimulating influence, wise counsel and perfect leadership." Elizabeth Melville, the present dean of women, said Mrs. Franklin's "innovations at B. U. were copied across the nation, even across the world."

Mrs. Franklin, now 82, said in her response: "There is no age limit to dreaming, and so I go on dreaming of the world and of Boston University's place in it. My thoughts go to the students, for they will have the greatest opportunities that have ever come to young people."

Boston University now has some 11,000 full-time students (more than 20,000 including part-time and summer students).
